The ALU control block has also been added. The PC does not receive a write control signal if it is written once at the end of every clock cycle; the branch control logic determines whether it is written with the incremented PC or the branch target address.

The control lines are shown in order.